The Benefits of Being Positive

Amy creates human capital strategies to enhance performance and profitability, and she believes that this happens through positive leadership and their positive teams.

Amy shares Jon Gordon's passion for developing positive leaders, organizations, and teams. She creates, executes, and measures award winning "Employer of Choice" and "Training and Development" programs that span all aspects of human resources and talent management: organizational development, leadership development, employee training, performance management, compensation strategy, talent acquisition, recognition programming, retention and engagement programming, benefit management, succession planning and overall employment branding programs.

She enjoys spending her free time with her husband and four active children. She and her husband are a team dedicated to raising children that will positively impact the world around them.
